

You are invited to attend:

The Salmon Arts Council will be hosting a free public lecture on public art in Salmon. All are invited to join. Mark Johnstone, Regional Public Art Adviser for the Idaho Commission on the Arts, will conduct a free workshop for the Salmon Arts Council - and any interested participants, such as artists, architects, developers or city officials on Friday November 12, 2010 at 4:00 pm at the Salmon City Center. The topics can be far-ranging, from how to get into public art, the benefits of public art, and funding. For more information, call either the Salmon Arts Council at (756-2987) or Johnstone directly at 208-788-3788.

Mark Johnstone is an author, curator and educator and public art advocate. Since 2004, he has lived in Hailey, Idaho, where he is Chair of the Arts Commission and serves on the Planning and Zoning Commission. He is a Regional Arts Advisor for the Idaho Commission for the Arts, and has also been a consultant for the Sun Valley Center for the Arts. He has written extensively about art, and is the author of Contemporary Art In Southern California (1999), and Epicenter – San Francisco Bay Area Art Now (with Leslie Holzman, Chronicle Books, 2002). While living in Los Angeles from 1977-2004, he directed the Public Art Program for the City of Los Angeles for eight years, was the curator of more than 60 exhibitions at galleries and museums in the United States and Europe, and served as Series Content Advisor for The Photographic Vision, a twenty-program award winning PBS series. Since 1988, he has worked as a public art liaison between artists, civic groups, corporations and city government.
